

Written by slinky
Thursday, 21 June 2007 20:19 -

Not that much to report this week as it's the usual calm before the storm period. I'm just waiting for my Trans overhaul kit to arrive from LA Racing Parts so I can freshen the gearbox before the 0-60mph challenge, I'm also waiting for the new Strange rear shockers from RRC. Both have said they'll be here this week. On the 0-60mph front I had a phone call last week from the TV company asking if they could do a couple of visits to my garage to get an insight into what it takes to build and race a car like mine. Mmm that should be interesting, also check out a video called Smoke, Fire and Thunder, there is an excellent piece on the CCSE including the dulcet tones of Ian of the FB's, Steve the "Greek" and yours truly. The video will be available shortly from Powerpoint communications at £14.95 +p+p.

The sponsorship situation is looking very disappointing this year, with only three sponsors staying on board, which is very strange as I've had more publicity than most. I guess the belts are really being tightened for most companies, although it doesn't help our cause much..... On a brighter note the newly designed "hero cards" are being printed and the new T-shirts are being designed as this is being written. At least we should look really professional this year (especially with the new crew shirts courtesy of RRC), hopefully we'll be going much faster too.....

Till nex'time